Thinking Out Loud

H. M. L.

William Shakespeare once remarked: "All the world's a stage." We in Nevada County are living through a drama, that in miniature is related to the great historical drama of the New Deal. Our January 20 march of the miners to return to their work in the Murchie, and our April 5 battle with the pickets, to make work safe for workers, if you like, are only manifestations on a small scale of the greater march and greater battle which is taking place throughout the United States.

In Crockett, for instance, according to information received here, 300 men, in round figures halted 2,300 men from returning to their work. That there should ever be a doubt of the right of the majority to work on their own terms and conditions is one of the paradoxes of the New Deal. But that seems to be one of the astounding developments that is gradually emerging from the welter of confusion in which the Abundant Life has involved us. As at Crockett, 23 men here voted to strike and thereby throw out of employment 240 men, willy nilly, without the 240 having an opportunity to vote on the matter themselves. To call such a proceeding un-American is to understate the case. That such an attempt should even succeed to the point where it becomes a county-wide controversy, in which 1500 members of one union are pitted against 100 men, a liberal count of the dissenters who left Nevada county temporarily, calls for a searching analysis of the factors entering into the controversy.

A good many years ago we had with us, particularly in California, the I. W. W. Their principles and their tactics were not very different from those who are discontented with their lot today. Whenever these I. W. W., which preached the same doctrine of "one big union" as that preached today by the CIO, became too numerous in any community, they were invited to move on to the adjoining county, and often the next county asked them not to hesitate there. To keep them moving is the old, futile device. The wind blows the tumble weeds hither and yon, but everywhere the tumble weeds blow they scatter seeds. So the enforced exit of dissentient elements from any community is no real remedy, either from a social or economic standpoint.

The chief difference between the CIO, and the old IWW group, is that the New Deal has placed on the statute book the Wagner act, which specially protects and fosters their organization and aims. With this government backing a small minority (accepting John L. Lewis' own figures) 4,000,000, becomes a formidable force even as opposed to some 56,000,000 other workers, organized and unorganized.

Even with the advantage of Federal backing, however, and a special dispensation in their favor in the appointment of a radical Labor Relations Board, the CIO would not have cut such a figure on the national stage had it not been that all communists, all radicals, and many of the government pensioners on the WPA rolls, quickly flocked to their banners. It is the adoption of the familiar communist tactics that thus far have made this small minority in the vast American population a formidable force. All their tactics fall into the familiar communistic pattern. In the east when winning their physical struggle against other workers, they tremendously resent calling out state troops. Governor Davey, of Ohio is anathema to them. In California, when their little skirmish in Nevada County goes against them with equal vehemence and ire, they denounce Governor Merriam for NOT calling out the troops.

Thus far the CIO has the unenviable record of putting more men OUT of employment than any other organization in the history of the United States. With the labor board, and indirectly of course, the President, supporting them, they are a large factor in the present depression. Their activities in Nevada County, the net result of which is to put one hundred men formerly employed in the Murchie, either on relief rolls or busily hunting other employment, is multiplied at least thousands of times throughout the country until now it is estimated that 12,000,000 workers are unemployed, which closely approximates the unemployment which President Roosevelt found when he took office in March, 1933.

The crying need of the day is an amendment of the Wagner labor act which will actually permit majorities of working men to rule in their own affairs. If, for instance an independent group like the Mine Workers Protective League, does not wish to pay tribute to either Lewis or Green, they should not be forced to do so by an arbitrary ruling of the Labor Board.

We feel very confident that sooner or later we shall have a just labor relations act, either a new one, or the Wagner act amended. If the revolt against the injustice of the Wagner labor act which flares in Nevada County, in Crockett, and in other communities, east and west, becomes sufficiently national in its manifestation, we shall have a speedy remedy in legislation.

Judge Isadore Golden, chairman of the Governor's Commission which last week considered Nevada County's revolt against the Wagner act, with keen insight, aptly compared the act to the Prohibition Amendment. There is, of course, a very apparent parallelism between the two measures. However, it required thirteen years to repeal the Prohibition Amendment. This was due to the fact that great resistance to it was not very well organized and consisted mainly in individual revolts. A federal agent shot and killed a bottlegger, or vice versa. The liquor war was a desolutory battle fought here and there between individuals or small groups, but eventually public sentiment crystallized and the statute was wiped off the books.

In the case of the Wagner act, however, it threatens to establish the CIO, as a powerful and subsidiary dictatorship of the Federal Government. The revolt is not among individuals and small groups, but is actually headed by the American Federation of Labor aided actively by every independent union, and backed, just as in Nevada County, by the great mass of people who use their heads to think with, heartily loath any new encroachment on their liberties, or abrogation of the rule of majorities.

P. T. A. TO HELP COMPLETE ROOM FOR CAMP GIRLS

Many subjects of interest to parents were discussed at the last meeting of the Elementary School Parent Teacher Association. Interest in the Cub Scouts, financial aid to help finish the club room for the Camp Fire Girls and a plan to get a different type of movies for the children were topics for general discussion.

Mr. Carlson gave a talk on the history and purpose of public school week. This week, being Public School Week an entertainment is to be given on Tuesday evening. Dr. Emaline Banks will be the speaker and a musical program has been prepared by pupils of the elementary and high schools. There will be open houses for those who wish to visit the class rooms.

After the business session the Ahdenah Group of Camp Fire Girls entertained those present with a program on Conservation. This was presented in the form of a radio broadcast, from station CFG, with Betty Smith acting as announcer.

Work song and Trail to Pahatsi, songs by entire group, Forest, by Alice Norton; Life of John Muir, Joyce Henwood; Recreation, Marian Gwin; Fish and Game, LaVerne Willard; Birds, Betty Foote; Sail, Jean Odegaard; Wild Life, Katherine Davis; Wild Flowers, Marilyn Lee; Water, Billie Keller; Original Poem, Betty Norton; Flute Solo, Velda Flindt accompanied by Ada Pratti. This program was educational as well as enjoyable.

Mrs. R. B. Champie has been appointed historian, Mrs. George Keller, publications chairman and Mrs. Stevens chairman of the magazine committee.

The next meeting will be held on May 6.

BANNER MT. POST SEATS OFFICERS

Banner Mt. Post, V F. W., and Auxiliary held joint installation in Odd Fellows hall Saturday evening with about 120 members and guests present. Installing officers were Earl Raymond for Banner Mt. Post and Mrs. John Figurski, the Auxiliary. Glenn Cleland, and Mrs. Elsie Weldon, were ouogoing officers for the post and auxiliary. A delicious turkey banquet was served at the close of the evening on a gaily decorated table. New officers are as follows:

Officers of the post installed are: Norman Kistle, Commander; Joseph W. Day, Senior Vice Commander; William E. Wyman, Junior Vice Commander; Lewellan Wanamake, Chaplain; Omar Tonella, Adjutant; Hugh Jones, Quartermaster.

STOCKTON HILL MINE

The management at the Stockton Hill property south of Grass Valley states sufficient ore has been blocked out to keep a 50 ton daily capacity mill in operation more than a year. Plans call for a mill in the near future. The shaft is to be deepened 1,000 feet below the present 315 ft. level and extensixe lateral development pressed. The main vein is four feet wide.

CIO VOTES NOT TO PICKET RED DOG ROAD NOW

About 167 members of the CIO local met last evening in the Strand theatre building auditorium, including a few women and children, and voted not to re-establish the picket line on the Red Dog road. This action, it is reported was taken following advice given by George R. Anderson, attorney on Saturday after his appearance in court here for the purpose of arguing his motion to disqualify Judge Raglan Tuttle in the pending trial of the six alleged rioters.

The following letter was sent to the CIO local by Otto Schiffner, manager of the Lava Cap mine, last Friday:

"Being in conference with your representative, Mr. Wilson, and your committee, to give the feeling of security so far as re-employment at the Lava Cap is concerned, I commit myself to the following proposition:

"That all of those men who left our employ recently and now have returned to go to work, we will re-employ them in accordance with their seniority of service at our property exclusive of any other employment and your whole group will be re-employed before any new men are given employment. That we will notify them to report for work, thereby avoiding the necessity of your men traveling back and forth to the property for employment. It will not be required of any of these men to take a physical examination."

(Signed) OTTO SCHIFFNER.

The above note refers apparently to those Lava Cap workers who joined other CIO members in Sacramento recently and forfeited their jobs at the Lava Cap. These men on Saturday unanimously voted to accept the conditions laid down in Mr. Schiffner's note.

It is reported that many of the local CIO members will presently go to Boca to work on the dam that is being constructed there with Federal aid. The work on the dam is expected to be resumed just as soon as snow and weather conditions admit.

JAMES SOWDER SCOUT MASTER FOR CUB TROOP

A group of twelve Cub Scouts were taken in the machines of Bert Foreman and James E. Sowder to the McQuay property in Willow Valley Saturday evening where games and a weenie roast were enjoyed about a big bon fire.

The boys were introduced to their new Cub Scout Master James E. Sowder, who is in the timber sales division of the Tahoe National Forest under B. C. Goldsmith. Sowder has had years of experience in scout work and the boys have a splendid season mapped out for them.

Eighteen Cub Scouts are registered but several have outgrown the cubs and will be entering the Boy Scouts. A drive is to be put on to raise the pack to 40 boys. The grammar school P. T. A. is sponsoring the Cub Scouts.

ALLEGED RIOTERS TRIAL DELAYED

Trial of five alleged rioters in connection with the rock-hurling episode at the Murchie mine road the morning of January 20th, scheduled to start today in superior court, was automatically postponed Saturday by the filing of a motion by the defendants for change of venue.

The five defendants facing trial —Henry Yuen, Pete Zdrich, Jim Vassion, C. E. Circle, Roy Taten—continue at liberty on bail.

The motion is signed by George R. Anderson and Herbert Reisner, their attorneys. The petition for the change avers among these other reasons:

That a fair and impartial trial cannot be had in Nevada County;

That there is a prejudice against the defendants by reason of their membership in Local 283, IUMMSW;

That ever since the date of the incident on January 20 there has been waged in Nevada City and Grass Valley a campaign of villification against the local and more particularly against the defendants;

That the newspapers of Grass Valley and Nevada City are attempting to poison the minds of the citizens and prospective jurors against all members of Local 283, and particularly these defendants.

Additional items of the motion are merely a rehash of CIO pronouncements which have been printed several times and need not be repeated here. The closing item reads:

That as a result of all the foregoing acts by a large number of people of Nevada County and due to the campaign of villification carried on against the defendants it would be impossible for them to get even the semblance of a fair trial, or to be tried by fair and impartial jurors in Nevada County.

Attached to the motion as exhibits are affidavits by Mark Cook, Walter Tarbuck, A. C. Carroll, Burt Asher and Otto Kron. The affidavits contain the usual version of the CIO of the events that have happened in Nevada County since January 20.

Judge Tuttle has set Friday, May 6th, as the time for hearing arguments on the motion. In the meantime District Attorney Vernon Stoll will file counter affidavits.

Jurors who have been summoned to appear in the superior court on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, will not have to attend on those dates due to the indefinite postponement of the trial. They will be notified later when to appear.

DEPOT HILL MINE

Fred Joubert reports this to be the best water season for operations at the Depot Hill gravel mine since 1921. The best values are now being found far up on top of the huge bank above the pit, in a small channel formed by an ancient river. The gold seems to be in yellow quartz in this channel. Joubert operates the monitor while he has three men employed in the pit. The Depot Hill gravel mine has the longest record of continuous operation of any hydraulic mine in California. Tailings are deposited behind Bullards Bar dam.

Mine Employment In Nevada County Rises

A survey of the mining employment for this month reveals an increase of about 40 men as compared with last month. In March the total payroll was $366,450. It is now $373,150. The increase is due principally to additional men employed by the Idaho Maryland.

A new company, the Buckeye Placer is operating on Greenhorn creek with five men employed. The following reports have been received from various mining companies:

MOUNTAINEER PROPERTY

Crews are drifting and developing on the bottom or 400 foot level in the Fortuna shaft of the Mountaineer property at Nevada City's southern limits. Latest reports are the ore looks quite promising. Considerable ore was milled in the Gracey-Glencoe mine mill this being discontinued when it was decided to drift to develop ore bodies.

ATLAS DREDGING COMPANY

Rapid progress has been made by the Atlas Dredging Company on leased properties along Deer Creek west of Nevada City throughout the winter months. The dragline equipment handles 2,000 yards of gravel per 24 hour day. The company expects to finish operations on their leased ground about August first. They started at the Anthony House near Bridgeport. Among the properties dredged was the Gillam ranch. They are now working the Davey property.

NORAMBAGUA PROPERTY

Diamond drilling below the developed area in the Norambagua property near Grass Valley is reported to be showing encouraging results. The property which has been enlarged to several hundred acres through leasing adjoining ground was leased by the H. Potter Campbell company of New York a year ago. Milling profitable ore from the main workings continues.

NORTH STAR MINE

Sinking in the North Star shaft has reached the 8,600 foot level and excellent milling ore is showing in the deep levels. The mill is running steadily on ore from the main workings and recent development will materially increase reserves. The North Star mine has been yielding pay ore for about 85 years.

NATIVE SON MINE

Thomas Brown is in charge of the work at the Native Son mine in the Blue Tent area north of Nevada City. A small building or two have been built and a pipe line is being laid to carry water down to the scene of future operations. Some machinery has been trucked to the site and some time was spent in prospecting the ground.

MOTION DENIED TO DISQUALIFY JUDGE TUTTLE

Reducing the argument of Attorney George R. Anderson, whose motion to disqualify Judge Raglan Tuttle from trying the case of six alleged rioters now pending, heard Friday before Judge Martin Welch of Sacramento, to an absurdity, District Attorney Stoll won an easy victory.

Anderson pleaded that Judge Tuttle's denial of probation to one Richlin, convicted by jury of resisting an officer, constituted a disqualification to try six alleged rioters, who were to have been tried May 2. Anderson claimed the appeal for probation had not been considered on its merits.

District Attorney Stoll pointed out in a transcript of Judge Tutttle's ruling that the appeal for probation had been considered. He went on to declare that if the judge were to be disqualified on account of his denial of probation to Richlin, he would be disqualified in all criminal cases. Anderson tried to prove that this would, indeed, be the fact, but that was too much for Judge Welch, who regarded that conclusion as untenable, and denied Anderson's motion to disqualify Judge Tuttle.

BATTERY CHARGED

Warrants for the arrest of Vic Gates and John Doe Robinson on charges of battery were issued today in the justice court on complaint of Robert Harris, that the two atttacked him last evening in the New Deal in Grass Valley.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder, if a stranger guest
Should come into my home some morning,
To smash my routine into bits
And break the dishes without warning;
If he should call me lurid names,
With threats and boasts and ribald shout,
Would it be wrong for me to rise,
And very firmly put him out?

I wonder just how far a man may go in defending the peace, security and honor of his home; I think we all know the answer to that question.

I wonder what means may be taken in ridding a decent neighborhood of marauders, brawlers and other types of undesirable trouble makers.

I wonder if a community, town or city, builded and maintained by the industry of home loving citizens, has any recourse when invaded by those who have no interest in its growth and welfare; but on the contrary have as their avowed purpose the disruption of orderly processes, the destruction of satisfactory conditions by the crude methods of coercion, threats, strikes and general intimidation.

I wonder why the average malcontent who is so eager to sow the seeds of strife and disorder, is surprised when he reaps the whirlwind.

I wonder if it is either ethical or practical, for a bread winner to fight for his job, the privilege of working where he chooses and the safety of his loved ones.

I wonder why some of our great daily newspapers do not appoint fact finding committees. We all like to believe what we read in the papers, and just lately we have at least—been puzzled.

I wonder why our law makers now in solemn conclave do not realize the fact that labor unrest, at the present time amounting in some parts of the country to small civil wars, strikes, coercion, disorder, etc., are doing their great part in prolonging and deepening the present so-called recession.

I wonder if we may swap the Wagner Relations Act, which acts lop sidedly—or not at all, for a Mompulsory Arbitration Act, which would maintain a balance between capital and labor, act in the interest of both and with some slight regard for the general public.

Uncle Silas says: "If Henry Ford keeps his promise not to tell R. F. D. how to run the country, he'll certainly be like the Irishman's rooster, all alone in a delegation by himself."

—A. MERRIAM CONNER.

THIS AND THAT

By ROY GRIFFITH DEETER

We have a very acute attack of spring fever. We are so overcome with the beauty of spring, the profusion of blossoms and the warmth of the sun that we are slightly punchy, that is, perhaps we should say slightly more punch than usual. (Far be it from us to give you an opening). What has caused the surrounding orchards to burst into such a mass of bloom we are not quite sure about, unless it is the sun spots, if every twentieth blossom develops into fruit there is going to be a simply super epidemic of collapsing trees.

Denis Dunn again: Our pal is punchy too, he has come over all queer about Easter rabbits. We quote. "Oh I love the bunny rabbits and their happy little habits, as they rollick and they frolic in their fun; for naught is quite as funny as a bonny little bunny as he rambles and he gambles in the sun. Thought he's silly, and he's sloppy and his ears are long and floppy, and his pudgy little nose is all a-twitch, yet the way he gives a shudder when he wags his little rudder, it's lovable, it's laughable, it's rich." Ah. me. Spring blooms and rabbits and one's fancy lightly turning to thoughts of the tummy ache we'll have from the first green apples.

This week's idiotic item. Custard is good to smear on weeds. It completely kills the weeds and utterly ruins the custard.

What is your I. Q.?

One of these is a half-caste. Doubloon, quadroon, platoon, monsoon, spittoon, typhoon.

If you were sent a yashmak you would wear it e,at it, feed it, plant it?

Majolica was, Sappho's god mother, a famous whippet, Hannibal's aunt, a celebrated soprano?

For whot is Oberammergau famous? Sausages, Nazo demonstrations, wood carving, Hitler's birth place, a play, wine?

A midinette is, a small damsel, a small dustbin?

The old gold miners were called, Plumduffs, Ricepuds, Cheesecakes, Sourdoughs?

Backgammon is, a game, a piece out of a pig, a member of the stock exchange?

Would you rub a little mussolini on a raw place?

We have to go now and see how many maple leaves have come out since we came in. Cheerio everybody.

The Week

By H. M. L. Jr.

In the late fifties, when Aunt Kate Sullivan came from San Francisco to Sebastapol with her parents, San Juan Ridge was speedily becoming one of the largest and most prosperous mining centers in California. It was one of the most pleasing and attractive communities in the state, when Aunt Kate spent most of her childhood in Sebastapol, one of the six pretty little towns that were young and bright along the road from French Corral to North San Juan. Now there is scarcely a trace of Sebastapol. A few thick rose bushes, grown scrubby and wild, mark the place where pleasant homes were surrounded by luxuriant gardens and neat family orchards.

Along the winding dirt road that leads from the Downieville highway to French Corral, there are few reminders of the towns of Birchville, Sweetland, Sebastapol, Empire Flat and Buckeye. Fruit trees with trunks gnarled and blackened by age, blossom all along the road. A few scattery shacks and barns, all of them looking as old as the hills around them, a brick structure that was once the Wells Fargo office in French Corral, a few schools, and a church or two are all that remain standing of the buildings that were once thick along the road from French Corral to North San Juan.

It is remarkable that some of these wooden frame structures have lasted so long. Of the buildings that were constructed in the fifties with the use of wooden pegs for nails, some are still standing and in use. The Pine Grove Reservoir, built in 1852, had a wooden gate that was constructed at the time of the creation of the reservoir. It is still in good condition and is in use. Many of the wooden buildings that are still standing are sadly sway-backed and lopsided. They look as if the next hard wind would destroy them. Though French Corral was at one time the third largest town in Nevada county, much larger than San Juan, San Juan is more imposing in its decadence. It has been more largely occupied since the boom days, and so better preserved. Its period of affluence came later than that of French Corral, resulted in the building of a number of sturdy brick edifices that have resisted disintegration with great success.

When politicians came along the Ridge in the old days, celebrations were always held. Colored bunting was hung up, grandiloquent speeches were made by the dozen, liquor found a happy home in every male stomach, bands marched and played, and after all the day's festivities a dance was held. On one of these occasions, when Senator Cross was running for re-election, a well known town character, a Prussian immigrant who was known as Charley Bradford, had considerable trouble tamping the powder in the cannon which he had had constructed especially for Fourth of July and political celebrations. The cannon had a vent for the tamping over which one of the people assisting in firing the gun had to hold his hand until the gun went off. Bradford had a very hot temper, and became angry after several unsuccessful attempts of an assistant who failed to keep tamping in the vent. "We'll blow the damn cannon to hell," said Bradford placing his own hand over the vent and little realizing what an excellent prophecy he had made. The cannon exploded with a roar that was heard clear in Nevada City. Bradford's head was blown neatly off his shoulders, from where it executed a curve in the air, and after striking the ground rolled down the hill.

French Corral had a considerable Chinatown in the sixties and early seventies. The Chinese in California were at that time completely un-Americanized. They appeared about the mountain towns clad in native black pajamas, smoking their little opium pipes, or carrying goods in baskets suspended from shoulder poles. They were clever and industrious workers, and worked for a standard wage of six-bits a day. The Milton Mining Company, chief operator of the diggings near French Corral at that time, brought large groups of Chinese laborers up from San Francisco to work the company properties. This importation of coolie labor occurred shortly before the decline of French Corral, and there are many old-timers who think that this cheap labor was, with the anti-hydraulic legislation, one of the chief causes of the decline of the Ridge.

Naturally the home-owning miners who had been deprived of their livings by the importation of Chinese laborers resented the presence of the Celestrials. Soon the sight of yellow men became nauseous to the hairy chested miners, pioneers of the ridge country. They banded together and met one day in front of a saloon in French Corral. Bearing an American flag, and preceded by the North San Juan band, several hundred miners marched to the camp of the Chinese and told them that they would have to leave the district. At this time V. B. Bell, superintendent of the Milton Mining Company, made a speech that was like the crack of doom for French Corral. He upbraided the miners for their attitude, and proclaimed that because of their action, grass would soon be growing in the streets in front of their homes. He later brought the Chinese, who fled in terror, back to French Corral, and had leaders of the white miners arrested. After this episode, which is known as the "Chinese riot" in the history of French Corral, the American miners departed from the Ridge in great numbers.

Now the grass does grow in what were once streets in front of the houses of the pioneers, and Chinamen are gone with the whites. Only about a hundred people live in French Corral and the vicinity of the once neat and gardened towns of Birchville, Sweetland, Sebastapol Empire Flat and Buckeye. The inhabitants subsist by raising a few cows, farming a little, and some by sniping along the Yuba. Most of them are people like Aunt Kate Sullivan who have grown old with the town, and do not wish to leave it in their age. They appreciate the green rolling hills of the Ridge, with their picturesque adornments of tired, flowering fruit trees and wild rose bushes. And they appreciate the surprisingly warm and snowless climates of the lower Ridge, which is one of California's rare unpublicized climate paradise. The towns along the Ridge are old and tired like the loyal inhabitants. The old Mississippi steamboat bell in the ancient schoolhouse in French Corral has a mournful note of reminiscence as it summons the few children to school. The weeds overgrowing the forty foot circle of flat cobblestones where French Corral's wheat was once separated from the chaff by the tramp of horses hooves, are a symbol of the triumph of Nature over the men who gouged and tore the hills with roaring streams of water in hydraulic mining.

LAURENCE E. CALANAN LAID TO REST TODAY

Mass for the repose of his soul of Laurence Edward Calanan was celebrated this morning at 11:30 at St. Canice Catholic church with Father Moran officiating. Interment was made in the Catholic Cemetery on West Broad street.

The many friends of deceased were greatly shocked Saturday to learn of his passing in a Sacramento hospital.

Friday afternoon he came to Nevada City on the Alleghany stage and went to the home of his sister, Mrs. S. C. Hieronimus. He was suffering intensely and Dr. George Foster was summoned from the Jones Memorial Hospital in Grass Valley.

After an examination he decided that the sick man should be removed to the hospital for treatment. After remaining there for a short time he was taken to the Sisters' Hospital in Sacramento for treatment by a specialist. His condition was found critical and he remained in the hospital and death came at 7:55 yesterday morning.

Laurence Edward Calanan was known as "Buzz" Calanan by a very wide circle of friends throughout the county.

He was born at North Columbia, February 23, 1882, and lived there practically all of his life. In his earlier years he worked on farms and at teaming. During later years he has been engaged in stock raising, operating the home ranch at the old Ray homestead on the road from the highway to North Columbia.

He had a pleasing personality, a keen wit, and repartee, but his words never cut or offended. He was never at a loss for an answer. He was generous to a fault, and a plea for aid never passed him unnoticed. He was the life of any party of which he was a member, his witty remarks and sallies always bringing a gale of laughter.

He is survived by the following sisters and brother: Miss Adelle Calanan of Nevada City; Miss W. A. Dudley of Sacramento; Mrs. S. C. Hieronimus of Nevada City; Mrs. Ed McCluskey of Alleghany, Mrs. John Ferry of San Francisco, and George H. Calanan of Nevada City.

Picketeer Described as Hiding in Attic of Garage for Hours

Correction in testimony of Joseph Larghero in newspapers of April 21, 1938.

Larghera ran in the garage of apartment No. 11 on Janiss property during the riot.

Some hours later tenant occupying same told us there was a man in the garage attic, would we get him out, as they were frightened.

We put up a ladder so Larghero could get down and off our premises which he did, and was never in our home at any time.

Strawberries, here again, and it won't be long before they are cheap. Strawberry Bavarian is one of the new ones for this season. It's one of these hostess desserts that may be made the day before and kept in the refrigerator.

Bake a simple one egg butter cake in a nine inch loaf pan, this is the foundation for the general dessert.

Turn out the cake, wash the pan and replace the cake in the pan with 2 sheets of wax paper crossed in the bottom and extending out over edges. (This simplifies removing the finished dessert from the pan). Then top with:

Strawberry Bavarian

2 tablespoons gelatin.
1-2 cup cold water.
1-2 cup boiling water.
3-4 cup sugar.
1 1-2 cups crushed strawberries.
1 cup whipping cream (whipped).

Soak gelatin in cold water for about 5 minutes. Add boiling water and sugar and stir until dissolved. Add crushed strawberries and chill until slightly thickened. Then fold cake, Chill until firm.

When ready to serve the shortcake, lift out from pan with the waxpaper, remove the paper and garnish with whipped cream and whole, unstemmed strawberries.

KANAKA MINING CORPORATION

The dredger and dragline equipment at the Kanaka mining corporation at Alleghany is handling about 3,000 yards of gravel per 24 hour day. The company has a lease on the Jack Bawden tailings dam which contains many thousands of yards of gravel from which a satisfactory yield of gold is being obtained. The property is on Kanaka Crek below the town of Alleghany. Mr. Macabee superintendent has 15 men employed.

Bob Srader, truckman of Alleghany, hauled a circus tent 36 by 24 feet from Colfax to the Kanaka Corporation property at Alleghany the latter part of last week. Mr. Srader stated it was to be used by one man for a home and he has decided to ask for one corner to batch in as he feels the owner will have plenty of room and some to spare.

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Moomey and children of Anderson, spent the week end as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Cleland and Moomey's father, in Nevada City. Mr. Moomey is with the Standard Oil company in the Shasta county area and states the big Central Valleys project is making splendid times for his section.

JUNIOR PROM

The junior prom was a success both in finances and enjoyment. A large crowd danced to the music of Foote's orchestra. The theme of the prom was trees and the hall was well decorated with cedar trees and blue and gold crepe paper. Refreshments were served in the out door court, which was well decorated and filled with little tables. This was the first formal dance at the new gymnasium and it is one that was presented very well. The grand march was led by Virginia Carney and David McCraney followed by Lorraine Harry and John Muscardini. The march was very impressive and several new formations were introduced.

The Home Economics club held a meeting Wednesday and decided upon a social gathering on Friday evening, April 29. The girls will meet at the fire places in Pioneer park and have a "weewnie roast". Sylvia Ronnig is chairman of the refreshment committee. The girls are under the direction of Miss McKnight and they look forward to a great deal of enjoyment Friday.

AUNT OF MRS. TREDENNICK PASSES

Mrs Fred Tredinnick received the sad news Wednesday of the death of her aunt, Miss Mary Pierce in Oakland. Miss Pierce was born in Racine, Wis., and lived in North San Juan a number of years before moving to Oakland to live with relatives. She leaves many nieces and nephews.

IDAHO MARYLAND TAILINGS DAM COVERS 20 ACRES

In order to give farmers along Wolf Creek clear water for the irrigating season the Idaho Maryland Mines Company, Inc., has spent considerable money and time enlarging and improving their tailings dam located near the big mine plant. The dam has been raised ten feet to make it about 50 feet high and it covers about 20 acres of ground. A new flume has been built and a 42 inch pipe line extends into the dam. The company has experimented with cement as a settling factor and finds it quickly clarifies the water which is practically clear it is flows over the higher dam into Wolf Creek. Men are employed three shifts to watch the water and take samples which are assayed for sand content, from time to time.

Fourteen men are employed on the Loma Rica ranch, owned by the company, and which is partly planted to a fruit orchard, besides rearing fine cattle and horses. The mines at Forbestown which are being developed by the Idaho Maryland company employs 122 men, an increase over last figures given out.
